

My name is Pia Monique Murray and I am blessed to be a dance educator. I believe arts education not only fosters enjoyable learning experiences, but also provides interdisciplinary approaches that can reach any learning modality.

Dance is a hybrid visual and performing art that regularly includes elements of other art forms, and innately synthesizes academic subjects (english language arts, literature, math, science, social studies, and foreign languages).

The experience of being a dancer incorporates attributes of social and emotional development through instances of communal interaction and individual expression and reflection.

Dance is a physical activity, so it also provides the inherent aspect of somatic development through physical strength, spatial awareness and emotional sensitivity. It has a great deal to offer to anyone's educational experience.
